[BY MAGNETIC WIRE.]

AUGUSTA, Me., July 1.—[Special.]—The Democratic State Committee met this morning at the Executive Chamber. Twenty members were present, and the meeting was called to order by Chairman Cook, with Chas. H. Hamlin, of Bangor, as Secretary. The Chairman said that the meeting was called for the purpose of considering the Congressional situation, and the action of the Democratic State Convention in relation thereto. He thought that the Democratic party had every reason to be encouraged by the result of the election in the Second District. The Democratic vote was greatly increased over that of last year, and the Democratic majority was reduced from 1,500 to 300. The Democratic party had not only gained in the Second District, but throughout the State. The Democratic vote was increased in every county in the State, and the Democratic majority was reduced from 6,000 to 3,000

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Children of Castle Rose" at the Academy.

"The Wizard of Czech Bros." is being played at the Columbia this week to very light houses, not over a hundred of people entering the house each night, and indeed, it is generally conceded that Mr. Whitney's business has been a trifling one. This is much to the regret of the entire company and of Mr. Whitney himself, who has worked hard and long to make the production a success. It is said that Mr. Whitney will withdraw the piece from the boards of the Columbia after this week.

George Wilson, formerly editor of "Wilson's Tid-Bits," has obtained quarters from the owners of Hooley's Theater in which to produce his new musical comedy, "The Widow Bedott," and has secured a company to support Miss Jessie Bartlett Davis, the prima donna. The piece will be produced at Hooley's on Aug. 3, and will be followed by Mr. Wilson's new musical comedy, "The Lamplighter's Lass," which will be produced in this city about Sept. 1. Mr. Wilson has not decided whether he will produce the piece at the Columbia or at Hooley's.

Mr. Francis Wilson has secured the rights to a musical farce by Mr. W. H. Kelly. The production, as usual, is to be made in this city.

The opening date of Augustin Daly's company will give to Chicago's many musical entertainments another pleasing feature. The performance will be given at the Grand Opera House, and will be the first time that Mr. Daly's company has visited the city since the memorable season when "Cleopatra" was produced in that same house.

Mr. Stevenson, who is a novelist, has written a play entitled "Little Dan's Letter," and the author of "Treasure Island" has also written a play entitled "Admiral Guinea." Both pieces have been produced in London, and the latter has been produced in this country. Mr. Stevenson's friends will be glad to learn that he has not given up the drama.

Mr. Daniel Frohman has secured the rights to "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and will produce the piece at the Lyceum Theater, New York, in the early autumn. Mr. Frohman has also secured the rights to "The Prisoner of Zenda," and will produce the piece at the Lyceum Theater, New York, in the early autumn. THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.
PASSED BY THE SENATE.

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—The Senate finally passed the River and Harbor bill this afternoon by a vote of about 35 to 20. Before the bill was passed, however, it was shorn of about $5,000,000 over the bill of the House. As it came from the House the bill appropriated $18,000,000. As it passed the Senate it appropriates $13,000,000. The day was spent by the Senate in considering the items of appropriation, the only question raised of the whole being a point of order between Senators Jefferson Davis and Vest, which, however, was overruled, the Senator being the occupation which built an aqueduct. Vance had assented to the bill, whereupon Senator Davis had risen to an explanation of his speech in defense of the general policy of River and Harbor bills, which he concluded was a true Democratic doctrine. He thought the development of the country made large appropriations necessary, and that River and Harbor bill was a very valuable aid to commerce.

It was determined by the Senate Appropriations Committee that an effort would be made to get over the Senate bill this session, and that before this effort is made there would be some days spent in securing the defeat of many items which are objectionable. The bill now passed will be considered in conference.

THE NAVAL BILL.
ADOPTED BY THE SENATE.

Washington, D. C., July 1.—Mr. Cockrell introduced the report of the conference committee on the Naval Appropriation bill, recommending the insertion in lieu thereof of the following: "That the Secretary of the Navy be authorized to cause to be completed the vessels of the new navy now under construction, and to cause to be constructed one steel vessel of the character known as a dispatch boat, and one vessel of the character known as a gunboat, and to cause to be completed the machinery for the vessels of the new navy now under construction, and to cause to be constructed one set of machinery of the character known as dispatch boat machinery, and one set of machinery of the character known as gunboat machinery, and to cause to be completed the armament for the vessels of the new navy now under construction, and to cause to be constructed one set of armament of the character known as dispatch boat armament, and one set of armament of the character known as gunboat armament, and to cause to be completed the torpedo outfit for the vessels of the new navy now under construction, and to cause to be constructed one torpedo outfit of the character known as dispatch boat torpedo outfit, and one torpedo outfit of the character known as gunboat torpedo outfit, and to cause to be completed the necessary plans and drawings for the vessels of the new navy now under construction, and to cause to be constructed the necessary plans and drawings for one vessel of the character known as a dispatch boat, and one vessel of the character known as a gunboat, and to cause to be completed the necessary plans and drawings for the machinery of the vessels of the new navy now under construction, and to cause to be constructed the necessary plans and drawings for one set of machinery of the character known as dispatch boat machinery, and one set of machinery of the character known as gunboat machinery, and to cause to be completed the necessary plans and drawings for the armament of the vessels of the new navy now under construction, and to cause to be constructed the necessary plans and drawings for one set of armament of the character known as dispatch boat armament, and one set of armament of the character known as gunboat armament, and to cause to be completed the necessary plans and drawings for the torpedo outfit of the vessels of the new navy now under construction, and to cause to be constructed the necessary plans and drawings for one torpedo outfit of the character known as dispatch boat torpedo outfit, and one torpedo outfit of the character known as gunboat torpedo outfit

The second fire test Fourth of July saw the seventy-four apartments of the Bertin & Eckhardt Annex almost a total loss. Fire was discovered about 4 o'clock in the morning, and the flames were soon beyond the control of the firemen. The loss is estimated at $50,000, fully insured.

Henry Gilchrist and Mathew Hays, the drivers of an ice-wagon which had overturned and killed Frank Ahrens, a five-year-old boy, were held to the Coroner's jury by Justice Hoffman, from which verdict Gilchrist took an appeal. Hays was discharged from jail by order of the grand jury, who found "no bill" in the case.

A. Cook keeps a barrel-house at No. 130 Eighteenth street, which the police say is the resort of a number of thieves. It is also a favorite place for "treating the prostitutes" amongst which of the lost every tempting assortment of rarely-got-up flash $5 garments. Yesterday Justice C. J. Wells.

John Walker, a colored Fourteen street expressman, discharged his son Edward from the employment of his father, and the youth swore revenge by getting a pistol and shooting the old man. Yesterday Edward was arraigned before Justice Summers, and, upon the testimony of his father, was held to the grand jury in the sum of $1,000. Failing to procure bail, he was committed to the County Jail.

Augustus Kiser, a resident of South avenue and Sangamon street, was summoned before Justice Summers charged with a violation of the Criminal Code. Officer Hartley appeared as complainant, the charge being that Kiser had struck him with a club. The case was set for hearing July 5. It is alleged that for some time Kiser has been annoying the officer, and the latter has finally concluded to swear out a warrant.

At the commencement exercises of the College of the Christian Brothers in St. Louis one of five gold medals which were awarded was won by Master Joseph Cox, of Chicago. The police have finally succeeded in breaking up what was known as the South Side gang of young thieves. The leaders, William Langan and Richard Dalzell, are under arrest in the Chicago Avenue Station on charges of burglary. They confessed to a number of robberies, and implicated a number of other boys, who were also arrested. Langan and Dalzell, it is said, were the leaders of the gang, and they had their headquarters in a vacant house on Chicago avenue, near Franklin street. Here they would meet and divide the spoils. Some of the boys arrested are not more than 12 years of age.

Dispatches to the principal cities of the United States yesterday were a week ago to-day:

St. Louis
San Francisco

New York exchanges that opened at noonday yesterday:

Chicago, No connection.
Boston, Mail's connection.
Cincinnati, Mail's connection.
New Orleans, Mail's connection.

Yesterday was regarded in Chicago as quite an era in one of the financial situations on account of the intense interests of the great corporations, and there was a feeling of relief on the part many on and the subjects were then in a fair way to be settled. There were no unpleasant features, all of the demands that had been presented to the meetings held in New York were acquiesced to, some questions that there might be no disagreements from this time forth. It is known that the managers of the railroads are not unanimous and that the security is not.

There is naturally some doubt on the minds of many from the movement of so much capital in the financial centres, but this is of a temporary character. There is just as much money as ever, and the payment of the dividends and interest will distribute it among the people who own stocks. The most significant fact of the day was that the Vanderbilt interests were not selling, but were buying. And it will be remembered that these same interests, for the purpose, were not buying but selling. It is not generally supposed that these will be any material increase in the dividend rates. Bankers have been all clamoring that per cent per annum was the utmost a strong Western exchange competent at the present low rates yesterday. The result was that most of the demand paper began to move. Currency was shipped to the East. There was no change in foreign bills. The supply was limited.

The Chicago investment market is not quite dead. There were some sales of local securities yesterday, and a sale of personal securities in New York by Chicago parties was reported. Local bank shares were not dealt in. Insurance stocks were also dull, nothing doing and it is not considered to require a favorable moment for good bids to get the people who have personal money purchase a number of such shares at a time. It was generally conceded that the turn in on the Chicago insurance boards of the Future that would be particularly true in these days. The management of the company sent a dispatch from New York announcing a list of the bonds on which payment would be made, and the Chicago managers were very busy.

Prices in the New York market turned on the question of payment or default on the bonds of several roads. Early in the day there was a falling of depression, and the tide set off, but later there was a decided change in the sentiment and a boom was started. The movement indicated the right to talk into the market could access with the acquisition of still more figures today. The most favored to begin, though there was considerable covering yesterday. There was no new stock especially sought for on advance, but the old engaged, from Oregon Transcontinental, which was been talked up for some time and was influences relevant to depend to the rising movement

ALLAN PINKERTON.

Death of the Great Detective After a Long and Trying Illness.

Some of the Dramatic Incidents of a Startling Life—A Short Era in the Regular Army.

Allan Pinkerton, the head of the famous detective agency, who has been dangerously ill for the last three weeks, and whose condition has been announced daily in THE TRIBUNE for the last ten days, died yesterday at 3:30 p. m. at his residence, No. 243 West Monroe street.

Allan Pinkerton was born in Scotland nearly Eighty Years, in the Suburbs of the City of Glasgow, Scotland, the 25th day of August, 1805. His parents were in humble circumstances, his father, William Pinkerton, being employed as a police-sergeant in the municipal police. When Allan was but a small boy his father died from the effect of injuries received at the hands of a prisoner whom he was arresting, and the family were thus deprived of their means of support.

Notwithstanding the extreme youth, being then scarcely 8 years of age, the weight and responsibility of providing for the family fell upon the shoulders of young Allan, who, with his brother, William, now a resident of Chicago, worked at the weaver's trade, and by their combined efforts succeeded in keeping the family from the poor-house. Before reaching the majority he became imbued with the sentiments of independence and reform which were afterwards to make him one of the Chartist leaders in Great Britain, and he soon became identified with the celebrated Chartist movement of the disaffected people. The Government resorted to every possible measure to crush out the spirit of the patriots, and many of the leaders were arrested and tried for high treason. Among the number was Allan Pinkerton, who was then but a youth of 19 years. Being a printer by trade, he had printed a number of Chartist publications, and for this offense was arrested and thrown into prison. During the trial of the case, which lasted for several days, Allan Pinkerton managed to make his escape, and the following paragraph appeared in a leading Glasgow paper: "Allan Pinkerton, the printer, who was tried for high treason, and who escaped during the trial, has been heard of in Liverpool, where he has obtained employment as a cooper." Shortly after this he succeeded in reaching the United States, and for a time worked at his trade in Chicago. He then went to Dundee, Kane County, Ill., where he purchased a farm, and for a time engaged in agricultural pursuits. While living in Dundee he discovered a gang of counterfeiters in the neighborhood, and, with the assistance of a few friends, succeeded in breaking up the gang and capturing the entire party. This was the beginning of his career as a detective, and from that time forward he was constantly employed in ferreting out criminals. In 1850 he was appointed Deputy Sheriff of Cook County, and in 1852 was elected City Detective of Chicago. In 1855 he was appointed Special Agent of the Post-Office Department, and in 1856 was appointed Chief of the United States Secret Service, which position he held for several years. During the war he was employed by the Government in secret service work, and was frequently sent into the Confederate States. He was also employed by the Government in the capture of the Confederate privateers, and was instrumental in the capture of the Sea Bird, the Retribution, and the Tacony. He was also employed in the capture of the Chesapeake, and was instrumental in the capture of the Confederate Colonel Thomas Harrison, who was engaged in recruiting men for the Confederate army in Canada. He was also employed in the capture of the Confederate Colonel Jacob Thompson, who was engaged in raising funds for the Confederate army in Canada. He was also employed in the capture of the Confederate Colonel Jacob Thompson, who was engaged in raising funds for the Confederate army in Canada.
